

Postcode zone ratings and postcode zones for solar (photovoltaic) systems

Postcode zones are one of the measures used to calculate the quantity of renewable energy certificates a solar panel system may be eligible for once it is installed—each zone represents the level of solar radiation for a geographical area.

To find the zone value for a solar panel system, cross check the postcode of the address where the system is, or will be, installed with the postcode range provided in the table below.

The postcode zones are also available in Schedule 5 of the Renewable Energy \(Electricity\) Regulations 2001.
